PARIS - Foreign ministers from the major world powers met today to seek a lasting peace for Vietnam, but the opening session was marked Canada to abandon its peacekeeping role on grounds the Vietnam ceasefire was not

Canadian External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, chairman of today's opening session, was pessimistic. He said the ceasefire was not working and Canada would quit its supervising role unless permanent political machinery is set up to orga-nize the peace.

Canada is one of four nations which agreed to police the ceasefire. The others are Hungary, Poland and In-

North Vietnam and the Viet Cong opposed today the Canadian suggestion that the 13-party Vietnam peace conference be made the continu-ing political authority to ing political authority to which the truce observers can report.

As the first plenary session ended, spokesmen for the two Communist groups told re-porters that a continuing political authority is unneces-sary and inappropriate.

Informants said China took the same view but suggested the question still is open to negotiation.

The plenary session was adjourned until Tuesday to allow extensive bilateral negotiations between Foreign ster Nguyen Duy-Trinh of North Vietnam and U.S. State Secretary William Rogers on a draft declaration to guarantee Vietnamese peace.

"The ceasefire has not been effective throughout South Vietnam and the four-power joint military commission has joint military commission has not operated effectively. Sharp said. "The Vietnamese parties are still engaged in hostile activities.

He said Canada would resign from the commission March 30 unless the problem is settled.

Price of Milk Boosted Again

Another two-cent hike in milk prices will go into effect Thursday with at least one major dairy. Silverwood Dairies, which raised all milk prices one cent a quart Feb. 3, announced the new raise today.

Gold Prices Plunge

Times News Services

Gold Prices plunged sharply in dealings on the world bullion markets while the U.S. dollar, especially in Europe, strengthened.

The drop in gold price was attributed to rumors that the U.S. was contemplating sale of gold held by its treasury.

And Washington today launched an investigation to learn what role multinational business played in precipita-ting the dollar crisis.

In London, gold sold be-tween $78 and $82 an ounce. This was sharply downward from Friday's afternoon price of $85 an ounce and drastical-ly lower than the $95 an ounce that gold touched in early dealings Friday.

The dollar strengthened slightly in Amsterdam, was fractionally higher in Zurich, and firmer in Frankfurt.

The congressional hearings finance committee, scheduled to last five days, also are expected to touch upon what in fluence such conglomerates have on U.S. foreign policy.

White House economic aide Peter Flanigan was the leadoff witness at the hearing, which was chaired by Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D—Conn. He was to be followed by Donald M. Kendall, board chairman of Pepsico, Inc.

Other witnesses during the hearings will be top executive of General Motors Corpora-tion, IBM World Trade Corporation, and Union Carbide Corporation, as well as AFLand United Auto Workers president Leonard Woodcock.

AMERICANS ON GUARD

Another conclusion by the American labor hierarchy seems to be that the needs and outlook of American workers are sharply different from many of their fellowworkers abroad. As one British labor observer suggested, the American worker may have largely reached his goal. He may have attained a satisfactory standard of living and may feel his big job is to pro-

Start using the Government's own rules to save a bundle on income tax.

Here's a perfectly legal way to use the Government's own rules to save on income tax.

The Government has a law that says in effect; "If you save now for your retirement, we'll let you pay as much as $4,000 into a registered retirement savings plan every year, and we'll let you knock it off your income".

(It used to be $2,500, but this year the Government has upped it to $4,000.

Some things are getting better.) So you merely lower your taxable income by putting up to $4,000 in our registered retirement savings plan and don't pay the tax on it.

Say you're self-employed, married, have two dependants under 16 years of age and earned sixteen thousand in 1972. Depending on the province you live in, your tax saving could amount to $1,161 which is a bundle, in any man's language. To top it all off, the money you save can make more money. Essentially there are four ways you can do this. You can have us invest it in stocks. You can have us invest it for a guaranteed rate of interest. You can have us invest it in income producing bonds change over the years. For instance you could invest in stocks for several years, for long-term growth. And then as you get closer to retirement, you might want to switch to a guaranteed interest rate.

And you can get your money out without paying a penalty.

When you eventually choose to withdraw it, you have to pay taxes on it at that time, of course. But this is what's most important. You pay tax on your money when you decide to pay it. This means later, when you're likely in a lower tax bracket.

This has led some to call this plan a tax shelter.

One fellow we know plans to pay into it for several years, watch it grow, then take it out to replace normal income while he lazes in Majorca.

But let's face it, the real benefit comes from leaving it in 'til you retire.

Moreover, we don't have a lot of salesmen out making calls, therefore you don have to pay sales commispublic agreement about the desirability of ensuring the continued existence in British Columbia of farmland, greenbelts, recreational land and urban land banks. Most of the initial controversy over the provincial government's sudden introduction of legislation to achieve this objective is more concerned with the manner of implementing the proposed measures than with the ultimate effects on land use. The concern of many persons, to put it in general terms, lies in the legislation's effects on people as opposed to its effects on

There is a noticeable flavor of the socialistic approach in the apparent assumption that what happens to individuals is not important so long as society benefits. Two world wars have been fought over that principle, not to mention a generation of so-called cold war.

Agriculture Minister Stupich admits that individuals may suffer, and that this will be too bad. It is clear, too, that the legislation provides for very restricted rights of appeal against provisions of the new bill, or actions of the commission which will be set up to exercise sweeping controls over land, its use and disposal. While the Minister suggests that only about four per cent of the land in the province will be actually involved in implementation of the legislation, in theory almost every square foot could be within its jurisdiction.

A measure of the government's attitude may be seen in the up the Act. The legislation will be state. passed, and then the public, and particularly those persons who will feel its weight, will have an opportunity to see whether it works or not. The implication is that if it does not, amendments may be made at a later date. This appears to be the same tentative trial-anderror approach which was so criticized in Social Credit legislative habits

The erosion of farmlands in British Columbia through subdivision, and use for industrial and other non-agricultural purposes, is certainly a public problem which calls for a solution. The desirability - even necessity - of greenbelts in our environment is generally acknowledged. Additional recreational areas are a continuing requirement of our society today, and the creation of land banks appears to be a feasible way in which to guide development.

But allocation of almost unlimited powers to a five-man commission against whose edicts an individual's right of resort to law will be severely curtailed, and whose decisions may result in financially disastrous changes in the life plans of elderly owners of farmland - such a gift of absolute authority is a very risky undertaking. It is the shaky element in an otherwise worthy proposal to safeguard our environment in various categories, for it undermines some of the rights which over many years have been won for the indi-governing eating establishments will obviously cause distress to some proprietors, but in a matter concerning health, high standards are required. Warnings have been issued and, according to one reaction, between 5 and 10 per cent of the smaller operators may be forced out of business, partly through inability to install required washroom facilities.

The problem is by no means a local phenomenon. It reaches across the continent to New Jersey, where an effective device is being used by authorities to encourage speedy improvements.

In that community, special notices are prominently displayed in smaller food serving quarters. A posted pink sheet defines an "unsatisfactory" health rating - and leads to closure. A white notice is "satisfactory". A yellow sheet denotes conditional approval subject to re-inspection to assure correction of faults.

Yellow notices discourage diners and pink ones lock the doors against the public.

When people absent themselves from a particular eating place, according to the New Jersey reports, changes occur quickly. As the co-ordinator of retail food programs there phrases it, the method "motivates compliance" - a point that should interest Victoria.

manner in which it is sought to set / vidual in his dealings with the

The commission will apparently have the power to decide how much agricultural land British Columbia needs - just as in a socialist state the government decides how many boots and frying pans the nation will require in a year. There is, too, the problem that no matter how many farmland acres may be preserved, there is no law that says anyone must farm them. The answer to that lies in agricultural produce prices, in capacity of the land to produce, in capital requirements, and other factors. The way could be opening to vast subsidy programs to back up the decisions of the commission, and perhaps to guarantee farm returns.

Because of the almost unlimited repercussions that could follow implementation of this legislation, it is clear that the fullest debate and propagation of information should precede governmental action. Hustling the law onto the books in order to find out if it is any good or not is a little too empirical for so important a measure. And it will do nothing to allay the fears of a public still only getting used to the philosophy and methods of an NDP administration.

The comment comes from Ontario university figures, but since that province has historically been a front-runner in Canadian education the impact may be general across this country. Comparable opinion has been voiced here.

Dr. Jill Conway, vice-president of the University of Toronto, and Prof. Robert Haynes, chairman of York University's biology department, say that some students graduating from high school are "scarcely literate" and some are unable to put a sentence together.

This, they say, is a situation that has developed in the last decade and is attributed by Prof. Haynes to "the practice of liberalization in our schools".

Anyone with the most cursory knowledge of education realizes how far we have come in recent times from that primitive concept of schooling centred merely on the Three R's. If the two Ontario university figures are correct, perhaps it's time we started a return journey.

How to Give Money Away?

PARIS - The international conference to nail down a Vietnam peace began here today at a moment in history when Soviet and American interests in Southeast Asia are beginning to converge at least in one limited respect. Moscov and Washington — for very different reasons - have a stake in "depoliticizing" the postwar reconstruction of North

Whether this will mean that the United Nations will be given the job remains to be seen. It does not necessarily follow

Russia's interest in separating reconstruction money from Washington's direct control arises from fear that otherwise the money will become a lever for American influence in North Viet-

Earlier this month Vladimir L. Kudryavtsev, political observer of the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia, said so in an interpretive article which was clearly a reflection of Kremlin policy.

Guise of Assistance

"The big monopolists of the imperialist powers," Kudryavtsev wrote, "... al-ready dream of insinuating themselves into the economy of Vietnam and other Indochinese countries in the guise of assistance, but actually for the purpose of strongly against acceptance by Hanoi of such aid.

Kudryavtsev did not advocate a UN aid program as an alternative. He said that the Soviet Union and its allies could do the job. But he made clear the direct American aid would be, in Kremlin eyes the worst possible course.

The United States, for its part, has an interest in avoiding the appearance of directly rebuilding North Vietnam. Such aid would be unpopular with many Americans; the appropriations would have rough sledding in Congress; and the money could be portrayed by Hanoi as "war reparations."

Thus both Moscow and Washington though starting from different premises, should logically be glad to see an international organization like the UN take over the task of receiving and administering reconstruction aid.

The Viet Cong in South Vietnam would also have reason to welcome it. If the United States were to be the principal source or channel of aid to the outh, the money would go primarily to President Thieu, thus directly or indirectly strengthening his grasp on politi-rightists, Communists and independents gle for political power on more nearly even terms. Thieu would benefit less if the aid were from a source which would be equally available to his adversaries.

The only important resistance to internationalization of the postwar rehabilitation process comes from Hanoi. Its objections, its main theme, could of course

North Vietnam has long nursed an antipathy for the UN, only recently beginning to modify this attitude. Hanoi's leaders may also hope the reconstruction aid will look, for propaganda purposes, like reparations.

Most of all, however, diplomatic sources here believe North Vietnam wants to encourage the retention - indeed, the strengthening and extension — of its influence in Southeast Asia.

In five years of peace negotiations prior to October 1972, the Vietnamese cooperated to facilitate a simple American disengagement. They always insisted that first, the United States assure the achievement of Hanoi's political goals.

Perhaps because there seems to be little practical alternative, and perhaps because of pressure from their friends, the North Vietnamese now have agreed to let the United States go, taking its prisoners with it. But Hanoi is still angling for American help in both economic and political spheres.

Hanol wants Washington to assure compliance by Saigon with the peace accord, whose political features, strictly observed, could lead to neutralization with the North.

Hanoi Hesitates

Whether UN (or other multilateral) would be consistent with these objectives is by no means clear; so Hanol, though not saying "no," is hesitating.

Diplomats doubt that the matter can be settled in the relatively brief time .perhaps only a week or two - they expect the conference to last. But they foresee intense and heated discussions on this and related issues behind the UN secretary-general are expected to take part.

The Joint Economic Commission which the United States and North Vietnam have already agreed to set up will not necessarily preempt a multilateral undertaking. Logic and simplicity, in this kind of thing are considered secondary to getting the job done.

If the U.S. Congress is willing to appropriate funds for a UN or other multinational agency for Southeast Asia, but not willing to give money directly to North Vietnam, then the Adminstration is entirely prepared to see it done multilaterally - it believes that Hanoi ought to be, also. There would be multilateral and bilateral organizations, side by side.

If it all comes off - which is to say. if Hanoi agrees to it - it could be a milestone in the growth of international organizations. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim is likely to be plugging hard

Toward Stability in A

WASHINGTON - Now that the mone tary crisis-which particularly affected U.S.-Japanese relations — has at least momentarily been solved, it may be considered almost certain that Emperor Hirohito and President Nixon will exchange official visits this year. The likelihood is Hirohito will come here first and the President will fly to Japan not too long afterward as part of the process of healing a friendship wounded by the Nixon shocks" on China and economics.

The Japanese objected to Nixon's sensational surprise journey to Peking but have subsequently come to realize that this did not in fact damage their own position.

Formal Relationships

Indeed it made it easier for them to relationships with the Chinese People's Republic. Later they were reassured by Marshall Green, Assistant Secretary of State for East Asia, that "we would certainly hope to consult very closely with Japan on whatever political arrangements are made with China.

Nor will the U.S. allow improved ties with China to stand in the way of better relationships with India. These sagged dismally when Washington supported Pakistan during its recent ill-fated war.

At that time the American stand was taken primarily to please China, which Nixon planned to visit as part of his game plan for settling the Vietnam war and also for strengthening America's bargaining hand with China's rival, the Soviet Union.

New Asia Policy

As part of its new Asia policy, Washington hopes to right the balance with India-without returning to the idea that greatly influenced American thinking during the 1950's and early 1960's: that India should play a major power role, working with the U.S. and Japan to develop an eastern cencert. It is gerenally acknowledged India just doesn't have that kind, of influence. China has a greater military role and political poten-

Young males, like autistic children, never did learn to relate, to defend, to mate. Calhoun called them nonmice. The Beautiful Ones, physically perfect but spiri-tually dead, huddled in a languid mass.

In their overcrowded litterity, mice learned to sociate certain gratifying activities with the presence of others, and to perform them only when others were close so that they packed themselves even closer to gather around food hoppers and water bottles. While some nesting boxes stood empty, others were so crowded that mice suffocated.

Reproduction ceased. The females passed mouse meno-pause. As the months passed, elders died and were not re-placed. Calhoun said there was no hope, but the colony was allowed to follow its in case someone thought there might be a re-birth when the population dropped back to the ideal size

'There was still this glimmering hope or idea that they might recoup," says biologist Halsey M. Marsden, so he re-moved some males and placed them in new enclosures among healthy social groups. them that some females were becoming attackers.

The researchers took those general observations as true, without waiting for statistical confirmation. In pure sciences, Marsden says, the practice is: "I see it but it's meaningless, so we'll ignore it until we get all the data."

Calhoun says the problem with normal science, which eliminates variables and views situations bit by bit, is simply that "life isn't that way. There's only one experiment - and that's life.

"We just let things go, to see what would happen ... normal science tries to eliminate all interaction. We try to study the total interaction . . . if you simplify life too much, you lose life."

In the orthodox method Calhoun's team color-coded the 2,200 mice according to behavior types and other factors and recorded their activi-ties. The data — one million items of observation on this study and four smaller ones — were fed to a computer.

By the time the information is analyzed and goes through the mill to publication in scientific journals, it will be 1976, Calhoun says. That will be 11 years after the study

The Pentagon reports that it has persuaded the na-tion's biggest employers to find jobs for former POWs who choose to leave military service. Television and the newspapers breathlessly cover every stage of the return.

* * * All this may be well-deserved, but like so many other developments of the war in Vietnam, it discloses a warped sense of priorities on the home front. In what way are these relatively few POWs greater heroes than the 50,000 fact, the Veterans Adminis-dead boys who came home in tration programs available body bags, some of them with smuggled, heroin obscenely concealed in their mangled flesh, most of them to obscure

And if it is argued that not, Official mourning for Pres-much, after all, can be done then in what way are the returning POWs more to be honored and preferred than the 254,000 Vietnam-era veterans aged 20 to 29 who are unemployed in the richest nation on earth? By what standards do the released prisoners de-serve so much honor of the republic when at the end of 1972 only a few more than 20,000 of the estimated 60 to 100,000 drug-addicted Vietnamera veterans were receiving or had received treatment for this "service-connected" disthis "service-connected" dis-ability?

tration programs available are limited basically to detoxification, with no provision for the kind of rehabilitation or retraining that might help a reformed addict stay off the habit. And in its fiscal 1974 POWs' return has proposed no increase in funds for treating drug-addicted veterans and is opposing a senate bill that for these most tragic of the

* * * The unemployment picture although it has recently improved somewhat - provides an equally strange example of relative values. Among Vietnam-era veterans 20 to 24 na veterans were receiving ra veterans were receiving ra veterans were receiving ra veterans were receiving rated received treatment for group, unemployment in January of this year was running at 8.6 percent, about twice the general rate and well above the 7.4 per cent rate for non-veterans aged 20 to 24.

The society that is so joyfully welcoming the POWs, moreover, permitted unemployment among black vietness aged 20 to nam-era veterans aged 20 to 24, another crucial group, to run at 9.5 per cent in the last quarter of 1972. So far from rolling out red carpet for these unemployed veterans, the administration proposes in the new budget to eliminate $1 billion for public employment — of whose enro-lees, nearly 40 per cent or has been proposed in vocational training under the Man-power Development and p o wer Development and Training Act, for which another 40,000 Vietnam-era veterans are enrolled.

The administration has never put into effect an educational program orderd by Congress that would provide $300 additional per veteran enrolled to institutions that would carry out special prowould carry out special programs for veterans, and another $150 for each enrolled veteran who had not com-pleted high school. Nixon ve-toed last October a veterans' health care bill that would have provided funds to bring V.A. hospitals' staff-patient ratios up from less than two to one to the 2.7 to 1 average of other hospitals. - - -

In fiscal 1971, an arbitrary cut from 84,000 to 79,000 in the average daily patient census
- the equivalent of closing 17 hospitals — was imposed on V.A. hospitals — Congressional action forced the average daily census back to about 82,000 but the fiscal 1974 budget proposes to reduce it again to 80,000. Nixon did rescind a recent V.A. order that would have reduced disability payments to Vietnam-era veterans and nothing could have been more appropriate in the week when the POWs began coming home to popular acclaim; but staff members of the Senate Veterans Affairs Committee can cite numerous other ex-amples of official and public reluctance to pay sufficient attention to the ordinary and unsung veterans who have been coming home all along. So let us horor the POWs and be glad their ordeal is ended; but let us remember also those who shall have borne the battle, those who need a new Ford less than a decent job, those for whony the only bracelet is a band of

$1.7 Millions Dike Gets Ottawa Okay

OTTAWA (CP)—The feder-al government will spend $1.7 million to build dikes around 700 acres of Indian land in the Chilliwack, B.C., area, it was announced today.

But we do. Because we know Canada is a tough place for a little economy import to make it. Cortina has always been one tough little car. And for '73, we've made it even tougher to meet all the demands Canadians look for in a small car. This year, we've added an energy-absorbing bumper system. And we introduced even more stringent quality control checks. But that's all, because Cortina already has the things an economy car needs to take on Canada's rugged driving conditions.

To handle the roughest roads, Cortina has a Short and Long Arm front suspension system and a 4-bar link rear system.

To handle high-speed highway driving, Cortina has an economical, 2-litre Overhead Camshaft engine. Power front disc brakes give fast, straight stops. And to resist salt-soaked slush, Cortina's body has a special rust resisting, electro-coated phosphate undercoating.

On the inside, we had a different set of priorities. Comfort and convenience.

There's plenty of room for five adults: And the fully reclining front bucket seats are especially comfortable. Fitted loop-pile carpeting adds luxury and extra sound insulation.

Because we built everything into Cortina that would make it tough and durable, with all the comfort you want, there's only one option to offer. The silk-smooth 3-speed automatic transmission. A radio is available as a dealerinstalled accessory. And that's all. In 2-door, 4-door or sporty 2-door

FORT ST. JOHN (CP) — Business and municipal leaders in British Columbia's Peace River district are alarmed at the possibility of losing a big chunk of the area's petroleum exploration industry to Alberta because of the B.C. side of the border.

the B.C. side of the border.

The biggest problem centres on a decision by Premier Dave Barrett's New Democratic Party government to increase petroleum royalties to 30 per cent. Across the border in Alberta, royalties recently went up four per cent to 22 per cent.

In the background of the royalties increase is the perennial curse of the Peace rennial curse of the Peace River district — bad roads linking the Monkman Pass-Grizzly Valley area with Dawson Creek.

As the situation now stands, Alberta trucks using private roads have better access to a multi-million-dollar drilling program in B.C. than do trucks from this province, which have to use Alberta highways to get to the area which have to use Alberta highways to get to the area in any event.

The royalties increase was announced in Barrett's first budget and it stirred up. a hor-net's nest of protest in this self-styled "oil capital of Brit-ish Columbia."

Mayor Peter Frankiw and local business leaders have formed a delegation waiting to see Barrett "at the drop of a hat" b try and get him to roll back the royalties in-crease.

The mayor claims that the higher royalties have already forced layoffs in companies that service oil and gas exploration rigs. He is a partner in a firm that runs a fleet of 16 oil tanker trucks.

"This area isn't the greatest in the world for oil and gas," said Mayor Frankiw.

"An operation here is probably marginal in the best times."

With royalties now lower in Alberta than B.C. — where the old rate was 15 per cent the exploration companies will desert the B.C. section of the Peace River country in droves, the mayor said. "They can go 30 miles east of here and stop inside the Alberta border and drill with a 22 per cent royalty instead of Frankiw said the town council and the local chamber of commerce have been conducting a survey of businesses to commerce have been conducting a survey of businesses to determine the impact of the lapse.

-A roadbuilding firm has had one contract for an access road to a drilling site cut off and three others cancelled.

—An oil company says it won't drill four wells that it had on the drawing board. "What happens here when the oil companies move out isn't going to affect Vancou-ver, or Prince George. It's only going to affect people in the Peace River area," said the mayor.

Ed Smith, Social Credit member of the legislature for Peace River North, attempted this week to get the house to hold an emergency debate on what he described as the im-pending collapse of the north-eastern B.C economy. His motion was rejected by the NDP majority. "The devastating impact of the proposed increase on royalities has resulted in a wholesale exodus by explora-tion and drilling companies," royalties increase and has so far discovered:

—An engineering firm has laid off 35 employees;

—A roadbuilding firm has had one contract for an access road to a drilling site ployment is rampant, the

At Dawson Creek, 60 miles southwest of here, the probtem is also compounded by the lack of a B.C. road com-between the town and the Monkman Pass-Grizzly Valley exploration site. Quasar Petroleum Ltd. is running a $6,000-a-day drilling program in the valley involving 100 men and a monthly payroll estimated at $80,000. Most of the money is going to Alberta pockets.

The workers are predominantly from Alberta and Saskatchewan and that's where they go to spend their money on days off.

Mayor Don Trail of Dawson Creek says he'd like to see the men living in his town and he suggests completion and up-grading of two private roads now partially finished to the site from the town.

The town wants provincial government help, but all Highways Minister Robert Strachan will say is that he has no statement "at this dent W. M. Anderson said legislation proposed by Vancouver East MLA Bob Williams to scrap the current board of PNE directors is politically inspired and neglects the interests of British Columbia residents as a whole.

PNE Fighting Act Change

Anderson made the charges in a three-page letter mailed to about 1,000 individuals or groups with some PNE interest, particularly those connected with livestock and agriculture.

In the letter, Anderson asks support to defeat fie bill called the Pacific National Exhibition Incorporation Act and scheduled to be introduced soon by Resources Minister Wil-

Three Goals That Nobody Wanted

A decision is expected in Ottawa today on the fate of the Central Junior Hockey League playoffs following the suspension Sunday of Smith Falls Bears and Brockville

The third-place Braves and fourth-place Bears were suspended from the playoffs, due to start Tuesday, after a telephone vote ordered by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association of a game last Tuesday in Smith Falls, in which three Brockville goals were scored by Smith Falls' players to give Braves a 6-5 victory.

The Bears apparently fired shots into their own net to avoid meeting Pembroke Lumber Kings in semi-final playoffs. The Kings were runaway league leaders with 98 points, 33 ahead of the runnerup Ottawa Rangers.

On Saturday, the Ottawa District Hockey Association Tined each team $1,000 and indefinitely suspended team coaches but was going to allow the clubs to continue in playoffs before the CAHA stepped in and ordered the telephone vote.

No Tax Ease Planned For City Businesses

By ROLAND MORGAN Times Staff

offset leaping commercial property assessments, says Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen.

The mayor says there will be an overall reduction of approximately 14 mills, about one-fifth of current property taxes, as a result of increased revenues coming from new relaxation of limits on annual assessment, increases nual assessment increases.

While commerce has been able to sustain assessment increases through higher prices and charges, homeowners have been forced to bear an unfair burden of taxes, the mayor commented today.

(Assessments determine individual levels of taxes to be paid. The mill rate sets the overall rate against these levels?)

A 10 per cent ceiling on assessment increases was lifted last month by the provincial government. Some tax assessments have been artificially restrained, and full enforcement of a 50 per cent assessment will mean big increases in these cases.

sessment will mean big increases in those cases.

Chamber of Commerce President Terry Farmer has called on the city to stagger the cost of tax in-creases, which he says will crush some small busicreases, which he says will crush some small businesses, by creating a lower commercial mill rate.

Mayor Pollen says this proposal is "self-defeating by its intrinsic absurdity."

"The mill rate is struck in accordance with the revenue requirements of the city, that's all."

The mayor said the Chamber of Commerce is behaving like a flat earth society — (an organization which still claims the world is not round).

"If we don't tax business on the real worth of its property we are literally having the private homeowner subsidize fictionally low land values," he said.

"I think that Bill 42 is the most staggering piece of legislation short of the imposition of a police state that one could hope to find in a provincial legislature."

"Yet there is not a mem-ber of the legislature who does not seek fair and effective ways in which to preserve farm land. "But the imposition of power from above at the hands of an appointed com-mission is absolutely intolera-

Curtis said the "enormity of powers to be given to the commission strikes at hundreds of years of usage of property and the principle of citizens having full access to the decision-makers through the ballot box."

Meanwhile, Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen endorsed the provincial government's land commission proposal. He said today it is a wise and courageous measure to prevent "the erosion of our life-blood — our farmlands."

Suppose you have got work at last in a restaurant kitch-en, the boss comes by one day and growls: "Gmon Let's get these dishes cleaned up."

It's the sort of incident, minor to most of us, which haunts the men and women being helped by Target Em-

They are people who have had more than their share of troubles but they are being taught the boss has his troubles too.

Target Employment is a Local Initiatives project to assist those who have had mental health problems to find, win and hold a job. Sponsored by the Victoria branch, Canadian Mental Health Association, its $18,000 grant is paying for the program conducted by seven counsellors from January to June.

40 INVOLVED

There are close to 40 men and women, from 18 to 55, taking part. While some of them are continuing medical treatment, all have been advised they can work if they can find suitable employment. Suitable is a key word. It means jobs within the capa-bilities of people who are in general more sensitive to tenion and it means bosses with "All these people want to work but they have a big fear of work at the same time;" says Vince Meechan, 28, one of the counsellors.

One of the ways the counsellors are trying to armor their group against the battering of work-a-day life is to conduct little plays of typical situations—such as the restaurant kitchen scene—and then-discover whether discuss what an employee should do.

REALLY TRYING

Maybe the best course for the kitchen worker in this case would be to seek out the boss and say something like: "I'm really trying at this job. Is there something I'm doing wrong?" Vince says.

In any event, the Target Employment group learns this is a common problem and there are ways to meet it. Building confidence is a major objective.

"We're trying to give people who have had problems in the past a chance to go into a job situation on a more equal footing," says Meechan.

So, in co-operation with Canada Manpower, there is employment assessment and instruction on completing job applications. In keeping with the program's aim to accentu-ate the positive, the group is helped to determine what they are looking for, what they can offer an employer.

It's not good enough to say "anything" when a prospective boss asks what you can do, says Meechan. There's a better chance when you can be specific, for example: "I can stock-taking or pricelabelling or I'd like to be a saleswoman in the shoe department." Target Employment holds group discussions which have dissolved some of the shyness. In recent weeks the program has included group tours to places like B.C. Forest Products, The Bay and B.C. Tel, a first-hand look inside some of the community's major employers.

"Just to show them. Some

"It includes all the things which may happen, ordinarily, during a patient's day," he told me. "With the idea of eventually reactivating for-gotten skills."

The program starts in the morning with a "warm-up" hour. Patients are taken in their wheelchairs to designated places on each of the three floors. There is music and, with the help of aides, a few simple exercises for those who can do them.

"It's amazing how some patients have responded to this warm-up session." Hall said. "We've even seen a spark of interest in those who

Quebecers Arrested

AGRIGENTO, Italy (UPI) - Two Quebec youths, who allegedly tried to sell hashish to an undercover agent, were arrested Sunday on charges of possession and sale of drugs. The youths, Danielle Sucy and Gilbert Duval, were arrested a week after they arrived and set up a tent in this Sicilian town.

Police said the investigator, disguised as a hippie, was sent to make contact with the youths after authorities noticed people drawn to the tent.

The investigators arrested the Canadians when they allegedly agreed to sell him 1.75 ounces of hashish for $70.

Daffodils, Crocuses Can Bloom Indoors

Healthy clumps of daffodils and crocuses in bud, and opening, prove a great temptation to imaginative gardeners. In a garden where many are growing, a few will not be missed, so go ahead and lift some for other purposes.

Having ready either some ornamental tubs, or simple gallon size cans with five large holes punched around the bottom edge and beneath for water drainage.

You will by this time have decided what you intend doing with the lifted bulbs once they are in the containers. Shallow pots, or even shallow tins like half pound tobacco tins, are fine for crowding with clumps of early crocuses to give friends living in apartments. They will see how quickly the petals spread open in the warmth.

If put outside on a balcony right in front of the sliding door, the crocuses will partially close again giving many days of pleasure as they respond to warm sunshine moving across the blooms.

Indoors, the lifespan will be two days, outside in the can if kept damp after lifting, crocus blooms will last from seven to 10 days. There may be more blooms up from smaller corms in the clump.

When they are over, you can offer to take back the can or pot to replant the corms in your garden, growing them on again for another year. They should be little the worse for their adventure if not allowed to be either overheated or

In today's deal, which arose in the match between China and Italy at the World Olympiad held arlier this year, the Chinese team outscored Italy. west was known to nave started with exactly two dia-monds and three clubs. Thus he had been dealt eight cards in the major suits. Declarer came to the conclusion that if In their previous eighteen matches, the Italian team had gone undefeated. This deal West had held five hearts headed by the king (the king he surely had, based on his high-low discards in hearts), he would have tended to have led a heart originally, instead of the queen of clubs from a three-card suit. So South assumed that West had a maximum of four hearts and, hence, at least four

After cashing the spade ace, South led his remaining spade and inserted dummy's ten, finessing against West's hoped-for jack. With the ten winning, South now made five spade tricks, and his contract. When the deal was replayed with Italy holding the North-South cards, North arrived at a four-spade contract. With no clues to guide him, declarer cashed th ace, king, and queen of spades, hoping to eatch the jack. When the jack failed to drop, he went-down to defeat.

FUN WITH FIGURES By J. A. H. HUNTER

Jack dipped into the little cloth bag, and pulled out a red poker chip.

"The odds were 5 to 2 against red," Mike told him. "They would have been 2 to 1 against a green." "Okay," said Jack. "I know you only have the three colors in there. What were the odds against my drawing a blue chip?" What do you think? (Answer tomorrow)

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Exercise Counts More Than Calories

Maye Clinic researchers have reported that some people can eat normally and gain weight. Drs. Nelson, Anderson, Gastineau, Hayles and Connie Stamnes studied the weights of patients ob-served for 35 years, and their conclusion was that calories do count, but that exercise is an important part of a program aimed at maintaining proper weight at mantaining proper weight.

The study showed that obese persons use up carbohydrates, fats and protein normally during rest and exercise; the problem is the steady decrease of calorie requirements with age. This decrease is such that obesity can develop with advancing age, while exercise remains constant, even if food intake is reduced. Exercise is important to counterbalance the decrease in calorie requirements.

As the report states, "There may be some truth to the often-heard statement, 'Doctor, I don't eat as much as I used to, but I have gained weight.'

very thin. Then in high school and college, I went to a good normal-weight for my six feel in height.

For my years between 17 and 45, I remained normal in weight without any effort at dieting, perhaps because I was active, first, in athletics, and then in 13 month-long mountain-climbing Sierra Club trips.

When, as I grew older, I stopped exercising so much, I suddenly gained 110 pounds.

Now, in my 80s, I eat very little, and I have to be very careful not to eat rolls or bread at a special luncheon, or my weight will go up a few pounds.

I do try to walk at least a mile each say, and I feel that this

I do try to walk at least a mile each day, and I feel that this is an excellent way of getting good exercise: Also, the Mayo researchers say that exercise is an important part of a program almed at maintaining proper weight.

Maybe the best course for the kitchen worker in this case would be to seek out the boss and say something like:

Is there something I'm doing wrong?" Vince says.

In any event, the Target Employment group learns this is a common problem and there are ways to meet it. Building confidence is a major objective.

"We're trying to give people who have had problems in the past a chance to go into a job footing," says Meechan.

So, in co-operation with Canada Manpower, there is employment assessment and ate the positive, the group is helped to determine what they are looking for, what they can offer an employer.

It's not good enough to say "anything" when a prospec-tive boss asks what you can do, says Meechan. There's a better chance when you can be specific, for example: "I can do stock-taking or price-labelling or I'd like to be a labelling or I'd saleswoman in the shoe de-

No special commercial mill rate will be set up to Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen.

The mayor says there will be an overall reduction of approximately 14 mills, about one-fifth of current property taxes, as a result of increased revenues coming from new relaxation of limits on an approximately taxes.

While commerce has been able to sustain aswhile commerce has been able to sustain assessment increases through higher prices and charges, homeowners have been forced to bear an unfair burden of taxes, the mayor commented today.

(Assessments determine individual levels of taxes to be paid. The mill rate sets the overall rate against those levels.)

A 10 per cent ceiling on assessment increases was lifted last month by the provincial government. Some tax assessments have been artificially restrained, and full enforcement of a 50 per cent assessment will mean big increases in those cases.

Chamber of Commerce President Terry Farmer has called on the city to stagger the cost of tax increases, which he says will crush some small businesses, by creating a lower commercial mill rate.

Mayor Pollen says this proposal is "self-defeating by its intrinsic absurdity."

"The mill rate is struck in accordance with the revenue requirements of the city, that's all."

The mayor said the Chamber of Commerce is behaving like a flat earth society — (an organization which still claims the world is not round). "If we don't tax business on the real worth of its property we are literally having the private homeowner subsidize fictionally low land values," he said.

TYKE'S BEDROOM BONFIRE CAUSES $1,000 DAMAGE

A three-year-old boy who "wanted to build made his way into a middle bedroom where a little fire on his bed" escaped injury with his mother, sister and brother following a house fire Sunday evening.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Margaret Beadnell of 1857 Fern, said today she had just put her three children to bed around nine last night, and so she wasn't too surprised to hear "a little commotion" in the upstairs bed-

. While Mrs. Beadnell was studying downstairs in the kitchen, three-year-old Jason a hearth fire was dying,

Somehow, the boy transferred the fire from that room to his own, where he decided "to build a little fire of his own."

Jason's nine-year-old sister Katherine gave the alarm.

"The fire was too far gone for us to handle," said Mrs. Beadnell today.

Total fire damage was today given as $1,000. The damage was limited to the one.

Times News Services Gold Prices plunged sharply in dealings on the world bul-lion markets while the U.S. dollar, especially in Europe, strengthened.

The drop in gold price was attributed to rumors that the U.S. was contemplating sale of gold held by its treasury. And Washington today launched an investigation to learn what role multinational business played in precipita-ting the dollar crisis.

In London, gold sold be-tween $78 and $82 an ounce. This was sharply downward from Friday's afternoon price of $85 an ounce and drastically lower than the $95 an ounce that gold touched in early dealings Friday.

The dollar strengthened slightly in Amsterdam, was fractionally higher in Zurich, and firmer in Frankfurt.

The congressional hearings by the subcommittee on international trade of the Senate finance committee, scheduled to last five days, also are expected to touch upon what in-fluence such conglomerates have on U.S. foreign policy.

White House economic aide Peter Flanigan was the leadoff witness at the hearing, which was chaired by Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D. Conn. He was to be followed by Donald M. Kendall, board

Chairman of Pepsico, Inc.
Other witnesses during the hearings will be top executive of General Motors Corpora-tion, IBM World Trade Cor-Cerporation, as well as AFL-CIO president George Meany and United Auto Workers pre-sident Leonard Woodcock.

Committee sources said they also want to learn what agreement, if any, the adninistration has made with labor leaders concerning the new trade bill in which President Nixon seeks author-ity to raise or lower tariffs against foreign imports at
